Want to make life harder for criminals?

Be aware of your surroundings, know where you are. Know who is around you and what they are doing.

Everyone should consider it a personal responsibility to report crime. When you report what you observe police can use that information to stop crime. You enable the police to assign officers in the places where crimes are occurring. Your report can help prevent a crime from reoccurring. At least one out of two crimes in the United States goes unreported, either because people don’t think the police can do anything about it, or because people don’t want to get involved. If you don’t report crime, this allows the criminal to continue to operate without interference. In many cases, the information provided by victims and witnesses lead to the arrest of a criminal. So tell the police as much as you can; no fact is too trivial. The police need the eyes and ears of all citizens.

AND FINALLY, if a crime does occur....... REPORT IT.

DECIDE NOW

Make the decision now about where your limits are.

If you decide now, you will not have a dilemma when the time comes. You will have made the decision you wanted to make, not the one you were pressured into, in the moment.

Make your decision now...
- Who is my buddy? Decide now to stick with a trusted friend.
- Am I going to drink? How much?
- Am I going to do drugs?
- Am I going to be alone with another person?
- Am I going to be intimate with that person? Does my partner have a clear understanding of my limits.
- Am I going to make it clear that “No” means “NO!”

*Special Note: It is never the victims fault. Understand that once you say “no.” that is the end of any sexual advances. Any sexual advance after that point can be a crime. Get yourself out of the situation and report it to Police as soon as safely possible.

WHAT TO DO

Don’t allow yourself to be manipulated into doing something you do not want to, or into doing something you know is wrong.

Be careful who you trust. Avoid risky situations. When something in your head is telling you something is wrong, get out of that situation as soon as possible.

Any drug that can affect judgment and behavior can put a person at risk for unwanted or risky sexual activity. Alcohol is the drug most commonly used to help commit sexual assaults.

Control your drink. Don’t give anyone opportunity to put anything in your drink.

If something bad happens, feel comfortable talking to the Police. The Police are professionals and will assist you with respect and empathy.

If you do not want to talk to the Police, contact free professional counseling services here on campus at (916) 278-6416.

If something does go wrong, talking to a third party professional is the best thing you can do. Police and Counselors have helped countless others through difficult situations.

SAFE TRANSPORTATION

Don’t drive or ride your bike home if you have been drinking. Ride with a sober friend or call a taxi instead.

If you drive after drinking even a small amount of alcohol, you can be impaired. The smallest amount of impairment can cause you to crash your vehicle.

If you are arrested for DUI it is a Misdemeanor. If under the influence of alcohol, you cause a traffic collision which results in an injury it is a Felony.

You can be arrested for DUI even if your BAC is not 0.08%.

Get a ride home from your sober designated driver. Don’t change plans after you’ve been drinking and go home with someone else.

Do what you enjoy, go out, have fun! Make sure you are in control of you. Make all important decisions ahead of time, so you can live with yourself later.
