Briefly describe the program proposal (new or change) and provide a justification.

The History/Social Science Subject Matter Program is designed to provide an academic major in History to students planning to be California public school teachers in Social Science; and to fulfill their subject matter requirements on the road to their credential in Social Science.

The old History/Social Science program had been in existence since the mid-1990s, and it was modified extensively in 2004. Those changes were approved at all levels of the University. The new program went into effect in Fall of 2005.

It became apparent immediately that the new program had a major flaw in that it contained a serious lack of U.S. history, particularly in the pre-1900 category, with an over emphasis on Modern World History. After consultations within the History Department, with Tim Fong (Coordinator of the Social Science Program), and the California Commission on Teacher Credentialing, we agreed that this program did lack a strong U.S. history component essential for students planning to teach history in High School.

The only changes being made are to the History course component of the program. These changes are minor. They will not require additional resources, and they will not create scheduling problems.

The proposed modifications are:

1) replacing the course requirement for Modern European History with a course requirement for Pre-1900 U.S. History;

2) modifying the course requirement for Modern World to a course requirement for World (Non-U.S.) History; and

3) clarifying that the previously approved course "Summative Assessment for Teachers" will be taught as Hist 198, and this course was previously approved.

This revised program has a much improved balance between U.S. and World History as well as greater coverage of both modern and early history.
