

Graduate Learning Goals

The Graduate Learning Goals embrace the core values: pursuit of excellence, collaborative efforts, community and global engagement, ethics and social responsibility, and diversity and access.

Educational Goal	Corresponding Learning Outcome
We desire that Sacramento State graduate students: Achieve individual growth through professional development.	Sacramento State graduate students should be able to: Recognize and identify dimensions of what it means to be a professional.
Master the skills, methods, and knowledge appropriate to their profession or field.	Demonstrate mastery of the skills, methods, and knowledge appropriate to the profession or field.
Effectively communicate discipline related information.	Demonstrate effective written and oral communication skills appropriate to professional and public contexts.
Achieve a worldview informed by multicultural and global perspectives as related to the profession.	Demonstrate the ability to work effectively within their field in a diverse and changing world.
Develop the ability to Identify and address ethical dilemmas, and understand how to select and defend one's course of action.	Recognize the ethical standards and address the ethical challenges in their profession or field.
Appreciate the value of collaborative efforts.	Use collaborative approaches when appropriate.
Gain an aptitude to continue professional development and lifelong learning.	Demonstrate the ability to seek and find knowledge and remain current in their field.