Recycling books

The campus community can donate books, videos, CDs, and magazines to the Library. Paper materials not suitable for the Library Collection or which cannot be sold by the Friends of the Library at the Book Bin (visit the book bin website at library.csus.edu/content2.asp?pageID=53) will be recycled by a company that turns used paper into attic insulation. Money earned from the Friends Book Bin sales is used to buy new books, materials and equipment for the Library.

Individuals interested in making a large donation should call Sally Hitchcock, University Library, 278-5954.

For more information, visit the "Sacramento State Recycles" website at www.fm.csus.edu/iwm/.

President Gonzalez' message on the governor's budget proposals

I know all of you have received Chancellor Charles B. Reed's message on Governor Schwarzenegger's most recent budget proposals.

It's too early to say how further reductions in state funding would affect us here on campus, but the University Budget Advisory Committee and I will be working to address the proposed cuts in the weeks ahead. Our efforts to prepare for the state budget crisis have left us in better shape to weather this storm.

We will also know more after Propositions 1A-1E are decided in the May 19 Special Election.

I want to reiterate that the California State University Board of Trustees has had no formal discussions about furloughs or job cuts. The Board is the only body that can take any such action of that kind in the CSU.

Links to Chancellor Reed's message and other information on the budget are available at Public Affairs' Budget Central website at www.csus.edu/pa/budget/.

I will continue to keep you posted as to any new developments.

Thank you,

Alexander Gonzalez
President

Grads prepare for end of term, commencement of new life

More than 4,500 Sacramento State students will move the tassel on their mortarboard this month, signifying the culmination of a college career and graduation from the University.

Sacramento State's 61st spring commencement is Friday, May 22, and Saturday, May 23, at Arco Arena. Friday ceremonies begin at noon with the College of Arts and Letters, followed by the College of Engineering and Computer Science at 3 p.m. The day ends with the College of Education at 5:30 p.m.

On May 23, ceremonies begin at 8:30 a.m. for the College of Health and Human Services, followed by the College of Social Sciences and Interdisciplinary Studies at 11:30 a.m., and the College of Business Administration at 2:30 p.m. Spring commencement wraps up with the College of Natural Sciences and Mathematics at 5:30 p.m.

The University's seven colleges will graduate 4,524 candidates.

The largest graduating class is from the College of Health and Human Services, with 1,006 students. The College of Arts and Letters is next, with 903 graduates.

Each college also will present its Dean's Award to a student in recognition of excellence in academics and service. Recipients are: Jaspreet Singh, College of Business Administration; Tim Bender, College of Engineering and Computer Science; Kevin Gustafson, College of Natural Sciences and Mathematics; Joshua Saldate, College of Arts and Letters; Nancy Chiang, College of Health and Human Services; Roberta Chevrette, College of Social Sciences and Interdisciplinary Studies; and Christina Arrodoondo, College of Education.

During the ceremonies, University President Alexander Gonzalez will present the President's Award to the top graduate. He also will present the President's Medal for Distinguished Service to George Crandell, chairman of The University Foundation at Sacramento State board of directors, for his fundraising efforts for the Troops to College program and 23 years of service to Sacramento State. The board has helped raise more than $150,000 for the program in less than a year.

President Gonzalez also will present an honorary degree to Sacramento businessman and philanthropist Fredrick Teichert. Teichert, a Sacramento State alumnus, is a board member of Teichert Inc., a major construction and materials company, and executive director of the Teichert Foundation, which supports numerous charities and organizations.

This year's class, including the 1,868 students who graduated in the winter, totals 6,392. Sacramento State has an annual enrollment of about 29,000 students.

The graduation breakdown by College:

Arts and Letters: 903

Business Administration: 887

Education: 445

Engineering and Computer Science: 278

Health and Human Services: 1,006

Natural Sciences and Mathematics: 222

Social Sciences and Interdisciplinary Studies: 747

Special Majors: 36

For more information on commencement, call the commencement office at (916) 278-4724 or visit www.csus.edu/commence.

Frederick Teichert to receive honorary degree

Sacramento philanthropist Frederick Teichert will receive the Honorary Degree of Doctor of Humane Letters by the Board of Trustees of the California State University and Sacramento State at the College of Arts and Letters commencement noon, Friday, May 22.

Teichert, 60, who received an MBA at Sacramento State in 1994, is a member of the board of directors of Teichert Inc., a major construction and materials company in Sacramento, and is the executive director of the Teichert Foundation, which awards grants to numerous charities and organizations.

Founded in 1887, the Teichert company now includes Teichert Construction, a general contractor that builds major projects such as roads, freeways, commercial and industrial site work, parks and airports. The firm's Teichert Materials is one of the largest construction materials producers in the nation.

Teichert is a member of The University Foundation at Sacramento State Board of Directors and the President's Circle. He is also president of the Sacramento Region Community Foundation and a member of the People Reaching Out Advisory Board, the Wells Fargo Bank Community Advisory Board, the Marguerite Home Foundation Board and the Policy Board to End Homelessness.

Teichert has received many community honors and awards in his lifetime, including the Sacramento State Alumni Association Distinguished Service Award in 2002.

Foundation Chair George Crandell to receive President's Medal

Sacramento State President Alexander Gonzalez will present George Crandell with the President's Medal for Distinguished Service during the University's Commencement ceremonies at 2:30 p.m., Saturday, May 23, at Arco Arena.

Crandell will receive the medal and speak to graduates of the College of Business Administration. He is the current Board chair of The University Foundation at Sacramento State, the auxiliary that manages donations to the University.

The award honors outstanding service to the University. Gonzalez has previously presented the award to William and Margaret Campbell in 2007 and Bob Mattos, former Hornet football coach, in 2008.

Recognized as one of the Sacramento Region's first venture capitalists, Crandell has served on The Foundation Board since 1986. Last year, he kicked off Sac State's Troops to College fundraising campaign with a personal donation of $25,000 in honor of his late father, who served in the U.S. Navy and was a major supporter of higher education.

Crandell and his wife, Linda, set up the Crandell Faculty Advancement Award Fund. Each year, it will provide grants for two faculty members to attend fundraising workshops and seminars.

Last month, Crandell also received the Honorary Alumnus Award at Sacramento State's Distinguished Service Awards.

Writing partners reap special friendships

Over spring semester, Ethel I. Baker Elementary School fifth-grader Byron Patterson and Sacramento State freshman Vladimiro Naranjo shared their thoughts in a series of letters they wrote to one other. On Tuesday, in a special University gathering, the pair finally got to meet face to face.

They had become friends in the Writing Partners Program, a Community Engagement Center literacy project that lets first-year Sacramento State students cultivate writing relationships with local elementary schoolchildren.

The University partners this semester were 89 students in the College Assistance Migrant Program (CAMP), which helps students from migrant and seasonal farmworker families succeed at Sacramento State. They participated as part of an Ethnic Studies course designed for CAMP students.

Rosana Chavez, CAMP retention counselor, says the benefits became apparent as the series of three letter exchanges progressed with 120 pupils at Baker Elementary in Sacramento. The college students developed a "sense of mentoring," taking lessons they've learned about success and passing them on to the youngsters.

Tuesday's outdoor gathering brought fourth-, fifth- and sixth-grade pupils together to share their final letters with their partners.

Byron Patterson, 11, beamed while talking with Naranjo, a Business major. "He's fun," the boy said, noting they are "both into video games." Byron says he "thinks it would be fun" to attend college and learn science and art – he likes drawing Spider-Man.

Naranjo says the gathering "brought back good memories" because he had a writing partner when he was a child, though it wasn't part of a program.

Natividad Chavez, a Geology major, was thrilled the children were so excited. "They were so motivated to be here, asking so many questions about college. They really want to go."

Fifth-grade teacher Susan Zimmerman said her pupils couldn't wait to get their letters. "It got them excited about writing, which is difficult to do at this age."

Writing Partners was the invention of a nonprofit organization called Write to Succeed, Inc. Launched at Sacramento State in the summer of 2005, it has run every semester since in courses such as nursing, teaching, and composition.

Oldest Sacramento State student to receive degree at age 92

At age 92, Estelle Rees-Arroyo has achieved many milestones in her lifetime. On May 22, she will realize perhaps her most significant -- becoming a Sacramento State graduate.

Believed to be the oldest student ever to graduate from the University, the Grass Valley resident is set to receive her Bachelor of Arts degree in History.

"I keep thinking I should have done this 70 years ago," she says. "But everybody can say 'if only' or 'what if?' – life doesn't work that way."

Graduation isn't the end of the road for Rees-Arroyo. She plans to write a fiction novel about the adventures of a woman in the Gold Rush era, and she already has a plot in mind. One of her favorite courses was on the history of American women, she says, "because some of it was what I had lived through."

As for Rees-Arroyo's decision to get a degree so late in life, she says: "I felt like it was a good idea not to let my mind get moldy. I think too many people, when they're older, figure they'll sit on the front porch in their rocking chair and watch the pine needles drop."

Rees-Arroyo's family will be in attendance when she receives her diploma in the commencement ceremony at Arco Arena. Her children are proud of her achievements and played a role in helping her to succeed. At times, when arthritis in her hands kept her from typing school papers, Rees-Arroyo's daughter typed them for her.

When Rees-Arroyo transferred from Sierra College in Grass Valley, Calif., with an Associate of Arts degree two years ago, her acceptance at Sacramento State drew national media attention.

Last Bulletin

This is the last edition of the Sacramento State Bulletin for the spring semester. The first edition for the next academic year will be Monday, August 24.

Monday Briefing will continue through the summer. Monday Briefing is a way for campus units to communicate items related to the campus and campus-related activities. These items can range from policy announcements from the President's Cabinet, to reminders about vacation use to retirement parties. The basic requirement is that the announcement should be of interest to a broad number of faculty and staff members.

Items for Monday Briefing may be submitted by visiting www.csus.edu/bulletin/mondaybriefingsubmit.htm.

The deadline is 11 a.m., the Thursday before publication. All submissions are subject to editing for style and space. More information is available at 278-6156.
