COURSE DESCRIPTION, GOALS AND OBJECTIVES:

CATALOUGE DESCRIPTION:
Survey of the historical narratives and other literature of the Bible, analysis of archeological evidence and introduction to the basic problems of textual criticism. Topics of study will include the origins and development of early Judaism and its interaction with surrounding cultures. Note: this course fulfills three units of the General Education C4 requirement.

COURSE DESCRIPTION AND GOALS:
As the Catalogue Description suggests, “Hebrew Bible” is a course that examines the so-called “Old Testament” from both an historical and literary perspective. It is analytical in approach, and thus will address issues such as archeological evidence and textual criticism. The context of this analysis will be that of Israelite society prior to the Common Era. As such, this course is oriented toward the academic study of the Hebrew Bible. It is not a course that seeks to deepen the faith experiences of students, although this would certainly be a positive result; and it is also not a course that seeks to “tear down” the faith experiences of students. Neither of these approaches is appropriate for the academic study of religion, whether related to sacred texts or not. With this in mind, classroom discussions will concentrate on the cultural experiences and perspectives of ancient Israel, and will therefore presuppose that the only appropriate frame of cultural reference will be that of ancient Israelite thought. No later system of theological reference will be introduced into our discussions, nor will allegorical or typological interpretations of Biblical texts (usually grounded in post-Biblical theological assumptions) be acceptable as a basis for discussion. This rule applies to all later systems of theological reference, whether Jewish, Christian, or Muslim.

Our goal here, then, will be to explore the evolution of early Israelite culture, paying particular attention to the underlying assumptions of Biblical historiography, and to the study of parallel texts and cultural artifacts in contemporary societies of the Ancient Near East. Consideration will also be given to questions surrounding the Canon itself, as well as to the central themes of Covenant, Election, and Redemption.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES:
1. Students will be exposed to the historical and cultural influences that have played significant roles in the evolution of the values, beliefs and ideas of Western societies, through the study of significant historical, literary, and religious texts.
2. Students will acquire a familiarity with the theories and methods of the social sciences in order to enhance their understandings of the major institutions in our society, and the roles that both individuals and groups play in shaping experience.

3. Students will achieve a thorough familiarity with the diverse genres of biblical literature.

4. Students will come to an understanding of the historical/cultural interaction between ancient Israel and its neighbors.

5. Students will acquire an historically informed view of the problems of text-dating, audience reception and authorship that have been raised by contemporary scholars.

REQUIRED READINGS:
Michael D. Coogan: The Old Testament: A Historical and Literary Introduction to the Hebrew Scriptures
Jewish Publication Society: Tanakh: Holy Scriptures
Richard Friedman: The Bible with Sources Revealed

REQUIREMENTS:
1) You are required to do all readings and come to class prepared to discuss the material assigned for that session. (Note: All reading assignments for the Friedman text will be made in class.)

2) Students will prepare five (5) comment papers (2 pages) during the course of the semester. (See “Comment Papers” section below.) These comment paper assignments will ask you to discuss and analyze material we have read and covered in class to that point in the semester. These assignments will be worth 20 points each, for a total of 100 points.

3) You will submit a 5-6-page paper at the end of the term. (See “Paper Due Date” section below for due date.) You will be given a prompt explaining what is required for this paper at least two weeks before it is due. This paper will be worth one hundred (100) points.

4) Although I do not have a formal participation grade beyond your presentation, I am a big fan of discussion, and your questions and comments may convince me that you deserve a higher grade.

GRADING:

ACADEMIC HONESTY:
The Sac State Catalogue says the following about Academic Honesty:

The principles of truth and honesty are recognized as fundamental to a community of scholars and teachers. California State University, Sacramento expects that faculty, staff, and students will honor these principles, and in so doing, will protect the integrity of academic work and student grades. Students are expected to know and abide by university policy about cheating, including plagiarism. The entire document, Policies and Procedures Regarding Academic Honesty, may be found on the university’s web site.

Cheating will not be tolerated in this course. If you cheat by using disallowed sources, copying from someone else’s paper, or plagiarizing, you will receive a failing grade for the course. You are also subject to being expelled from the university. University Policy Manual   Library’s Plagiarism Website
