Columbus’s voyages to the land he thought were the Indies were the result of the medieval and early modern expansion of Europe. Since at least the year 1000, Europe had been steadily expanding its political influence and commerce. Recent advances in science and geography had made the times ripe for Columbus’s effort . . .

Nelson Klose and Robert F. Jones, United States History: To 1877

They . . . brought us parrots and balls of cotton and spears and many other things, which they exchanged for the glass beads and hawks’ bells. They willingly traded everything they owned. . . . They were well-built, with good bodies and handsome features. . . . They do not bear arms, and do not know them, for I showed them a sword, they took it by the edge and cut themselves out of ignorance. They have no iron. Their spears are made of cane. . . . They would make fine servants. . . . With fifty men we could subjugate them all and make them do whatever we want.

Christopher Columbus, “Ship’s Log”

We hold these truths to be self-evident: That all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that, to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed . . .

Thomas Jefferson, Declaration of Independence

Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation or any nation so conceived and so dedicated can long endure.

COURSE DESCRIPTION, GOALS AND OBJECTIVES:
CATALOGUE DESCRIPTION AND GENERAL EDUCATION CATEGORIES
Basic historical survey of the rise of American civilization from colonial beginnings through the rebuilding of the union during Reconstruction. Note: Fulfills state graduation requirement for U.S. History; fulfills state graduation requirement for Race and Ethnicity; fulfills three units of General Education requirement: D3.

COURSE DESCRIPTION AND GOALS:
Oriented around lectures, discussions, and readings, this course is designed to introduce students to major themes in United States history, from its beginnings to 1877. The course has two main goals: 1) To provide students with a foundational understanding of the chronology of the history of the United States from its beginnings to 1877; 2) To allow students to understand that the “facts and figures” of history have a richness that is not only extremely interesting but profoundly significant in relation to present-day America. In order to accomplish the first goal, we will examine the historical evolution of America. In other words, we will learn when and where the major events in U.S. history took place, as the chronology is vastly important. But history is so much more than just “facts and figures”; and thus, in order to accomplish the second goal, we will use our historical chronology as a context within which to explore the ideas, values, mythologies, and prejudices of U.S. history through the period of the Civil War and Reconstruction. In this way, we will come to understand that our own experience of America is shaped by a legacy that is both visionary and at times disturbingly shortsighted.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES:
With the above goals in mind:
- Students will develop a better understanding of the chronology and pivotal issues and themes of U.S. history from its beginnings to 1877.
- Students will develop a better understanding of the relationship among colonization, the birth of the Republic, western expansion, and the issues surrounding the Civil War.
- Students will develop an understanding of and appreciation for the significance of region and geography in shaping the nation’s history.
- Students will develop an understanding and appreciation of the contributions, perspectives and agency of ethnic, racial and cultural populations, including Native American, African and African American, Latinos, and Asians in U.S. history.
- Students will develop an understanding of and appreciation for the contributions, diverse perspectives, and agency of women in U.S. history.
- Students will become acquainted with the use of primary sources.
- Students will become acquainted with historical analysis and sharpen their critical thinking skills.

REQUIRED READINGS:
Eric Foner: Give Me Liberty!: An American History, Volume I
Eric Foner: Voices of Freedom: A Documentary History, Volume I
University Readers: Collection of Primary Sources for US History (at bookstore with other texts)
REQUIREMENTS:
1) You are required to do all readings and come to class prepared to discuss the material assigned for that session.
2) You will complete six (5) short assignments during the course of the semester. These assignments will ask you to discuss primary source materials (Voices of Freedom, and the University Readers materials). Each assignment will be worth 30 points for a total of 150 points. (Instructions posted on SacCT.) Assignments must be submitted in class on the day they are due; assignments will not be accepted by e-mail! Do not leave assignments at department office; do slip assignments under my office door; do not leave assignments on table in front of class, wait until I ask for them in class.
3) You will complete a take-home essay exam at the end of the semester. This exam will cover material from Give Me Liberty! and your primary source readers. The exam will be worth 100 points. (Study sheets posted on SacCT.)
4) Although I do not have a formal participation grade, I am a big fan of discussion, and your questions and comments may convince me that you deserve a higher grade.
