Events connected to and leading up to Sac State Food Day on campus

- September 7th: Food Literacy Fair at Midtown Farmers Market (celebrates Sacramento County & City resolutions declaring September Food Literacy Month)
- September 28th: Farm-to-Fork Festival (showcases regional farms & ranches, local food, wine & craft brew tastings, chef demonstrations, food education, live music, and much more; Mayor Kevin Johnson declared Sacramento as the Farm to Fork Capital, and we connected with the organizers)
- On-campus Farmers market during the fall semester (organized by the Associated Students, Inc.)

Thursday October 24th 2013 (some events might be held throughout the week due to scheduling conflicts)

- Film viewing ‘A Place at the Table’ at Hinde Auditorium, Student Union (October 22nd, 9 – 11 am); followed by discussion
- Morning Preschool kitchen demonstration and tastings at the WELL, followed by demonstrations and tastings for students and public throughout the day
- Film viewing ‘Weight of the Nation’ at California Suite, Student Union (1-3pm); followed by discussion
- Student and Faculty poster presentation and Community partner information session at Multicultural Center (12-1.30pm)
- Panel discussion on What to eat at Sac State at Redwood room, Student Union (1.30-2.30pm, organized and led by Student Economics Association)
- Panel discussion on Food education, and the role of the school food environment at Redwood room, Student Union (5.30-7pm)
- Keynote speaker at Redwood room, Student Union (7-8pm): Anna Blythe Lappé
- All day featured menus around campus dining establishments
- All day featured literature at the Hornet Bookstore

All events on campus are open and free to all of the campus community and the public!

Please contact Assistant Professors, Kristin Kiesel kiesel@csus.edu (Economics) and Lynn Hanna lhanna@csus.edu (Family and Consumer Sciences) for additional details and questions.