You are invited to attend the California Lesson Study Conference, Sunday and Monday, June 7-8, 2009 at the Asilomar Conference Center. The goal of the conference is to provide an engaging forum for teachers and administrators to learn about the process of lesson study, for lesson study teams and researchers to share their work, and for policy-makers to think about the possibilities of lesson study as a tool for building collaborative professional communities, improving instruction, and increasing student achievement.

Conference highlights include:

• Keynote, Catherine Lewis, Ph.D., Principal Investigator, Lesson Study Groups and Senior Research Scientist at Mills College.

• Breakout session strands that include:
  - Elementary mathematics
  - Elementary science
  - Secondary mathematics
  - Secondary science
  - Other academic subjects
  - Introduction to lesson study
  - Research on lesson study
  - Managing lesson study programs
  - Ways administrators might support lesson study

• Presentations by lesson study teams, professional developers, and administrators

• Networking and idea sharing opportunities.

To register, complete and submit the registration form included. The registration fee includes lodging, dinner, continental breakfast and lunch, parking permit and all conference materials. You can also register at our website www.calessonstudy.org today.
Catherine Lewis, Ph.D. is a senior research scholar at Mills College and principal investigator on investigations of lesson study funded by the National Science Foundation and Federal Department of Education. She has conducted research in Japanese and U.S. schools for 25 years and has been instrumental in introducing and nurturing lesson study outside Japan through more than a dozen publications and videotapes, including Lesson Study: A Handbook of Teacher-Led Instructional Change (www.rbs.org) and How Many seats? (www.lessonresearch.net). A graduate of Harvard University (B.A.) and Stanford University (Ph.D.), Lewis is proud to have four generations of public school teachers in her family.
