

The Renaissance Society Lifelong Learning for Adults

The Renaissance Society at Sacramento State provides learning and social opportunities for older adults in a casual and fun atmosphere. At an affordable $100 per year adults can take unlimited courses and participate in various activities and interest groups. In the Spring '23 semester over 135 programs were offered including American and world history, current affairs, the history of popular music styles, group dinners, reading groups, walking groups, game playing, personal investing, cinema, science and engineering topics and digital photography. No formal education is required. Many programs can be attended through zoom online or in-person on campus. One-time presentations on current topics and subjects of interest to older adults are also offered.

Registration for the '23-'24 academic year is now open and the fall activity catalogue will be available online on August 7th. Individual program enrollment begins online August 14th and an on-campus open house and orientation will be held on August 18th in the University Union. Classes and activities begin September 5th.
