Conference highlights California transportation challenges

The 25th annual Envisioning California Conference, “Moving On: Transforming Transportation in California,” will be held at the Sacramento Public Library, Tsakopoulos Galleria on Friday, Oct. 3.

This year’s conference, sponsored by the Center for California Studies, will focus on the evolution of the Golden State’s complex transportation network and what it portends for the future. Interactive panel discussions will examine the challenges facing California’s transportation system and will explore policy options and their associated trade-offs for future innovations.

A lunch program will include a keynote address by Jeffery Spencer, who leads the Intelligent Transportation Systems project for the Federal Transit Administration; the 20th annual California Journalism Awards; and a buffet lunch catered by Amador County chef Beth Sogaard.

Register for this event by Monday, Sept 22, at www.eventbrite.com/e/25th-annual-envisioning-california-conference-tickets-12277715979. For additional information, visit www.csus.edu/calst/envisioning_california_conference.html

The Center for California Studies is a public education, public service, and applied research unit of Sacramento State. Founded in 1982, the Center possesses a unique trust: to bring the resources of the state’s largest university system to the service of public discourse, civic education and state government.

For media assistance, contact Sacramento State’s Public Affairs office at (916) 278-6156. – Alan Miller