Sac State’s enrollment up slightly this semester

Sacramento State’s headcount for the Spring 2015 semester is 27,696 students. The slight planned increase in enrollment means that more students were able to enroll in more courses toward their degrees.

Another highlight of the Spring Census is that Sac State is making its mark as a destination campus, with more and more applicants coming from throughout California – and beyond.

Also, an increasing number of students are transferring to Sac State from other California State University campuses, in addition to those who transfer from area community colleges.

“We are targeting about 7,000 new undergraduates and about 1,100 new credential, master’s and doctoral students for Fall 2015,” says Ed Mills, vice president for Student Affairs.

All remaining undergraduate admission notifications for the fall semester will be mailed Monday. – Dixie Reid
