UN Simulation: 2012-2013

This year CSUS delegations participating in the American and National Model United Nations conferences continued their tradition of excellence, earning ten total awards including: six Outstanding Delegation in Committee; three Outstanding Position Paper; and an overall Distinguished Delegation award.

At the 2012 AMUN fall conference in Chicago, our students represented the Socialist Republic of Viet Nam and addressed a diverse range of complicated problems. Outstanding Delegation in Committee winners included:

- Aaron Kerby and Audrey Simpson in the General Assembly Third Committee;
- Ted Stanfield and Cael Cox in the Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific; and

At the 2013 NMUN spring conference in New York, where half of the delegates come from universities outside the United States, we represented the non-governmental organization Oxfam International. Outstanding Delegation in Committee winners included:

- Noah Rodriguez and Audrey Simpson in the Economic and Social Council, Plenary;
- Ted Stanfield and Justin Dator in the United Nations Development Program; and

Outstanding Position Paper in Committee winners included:

- Hanna Stelmakhovych and Aaron Kerby in the Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia;
- Ted Stanfield and Justin Dator in the United Nations Development Program;

The entire CSUS team was also recognized with an overall Distinguished Delegation Award. In addition to the delegations recognized above, award winners included:

- Holland Nguyen and Branden Galley in the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development; and