

Student Cover Letter

When presenting my paper to our class at the end of the semester I chose to call it “A Journey Through Hell’s Kitchen”. The actual title of the paper is “Hell’s Kitchen: An Audience Ethnography” but I wanted to point out to my peers what a process the paper has been and for that reason I referred to it as a journey.

Due to this assignment I had the opportunity to learn about many concepts which were new to me, but ultimately, I wanted my paper to contain concepts which were new to everyone. As I was writing I kept hearing Dr. Foss-Snowden’s voice asking the question “so what”- meaning why is this important. Her words pushed me to keep researching and writing until I came up with what I believe is a new concept and therefore potentially important.

I have learned a great deal in my journey through Hell’s Kitchen and I would be delighted to share my learning with all of my CSUS peers in the form of “Hell’s Kitchen: An Audience Ethnography”.

Luci Galván