Bookstore’s on top of fashions, best sellers

Some CSUS students and visitors may see the Hornet Bookstore as a place to stop between classes and grab a quick Snickers bar or, reluctantly, drop a few hundred dollars on textbooks at the start of each semester. But those who take a closer look will find that the Bookstore offers much more – a place to buy the latest fashions or the hot new best seller.

One look around the Bookstore and it’s easy to see it doesn’t only offer the standard sweatshirts and other college memorabilia. There is also a style of many of the same styles that college students and their peers can find at their favorite trendy store or catalog.

“Hooded sweatshirts are always a hot seller,” says Susan Gallos, merchandising manager. “But now we’re starting to offer apparel such as spaghetti-strap tanks and Capri pants in a more fitted style for women.” Gallos says that manufacturers have started to take note that women are more interested in wearing college apparel that is styled like something they would buy in a regular clothing store.

This forces Gallo to stay on top of trends that translate into sales in the Bookstore’s apparel area. So in addition to ordering hooded sweatshirts just as temperatures rise in the summer, Gallos must stay ahead of the fashion curve and think about how many tank tops to order as temperatures rise in the summer, forcing Gallos to stay on top of trends that translate into sales in the Bookstore’s apparel area. So in addition to ordering hooded sweatshirts just as temperatures rise in the summer, Gallos must stay ahead of the fashion curve and think about how many tank tops to order as temperatures rise in the summer.

With all of the advances in health care during the past decade, it’s no wonder that studies estimate health care during the past decade, it’s no wonder that studies estimate that colleagues and customers make up for it in our level of customer service.”

Boliver explains that in addition to best sellers, the Hornet Bookstore carries books by smaller publishers that may not find their way into a larger retailer. Local buying gives the Hornet Bookstore the freedom to offer books by local and faculty authors, as well as titles that colleagues and customers suggest. And Bookstore staff is happy to order. • College of Engineering and Computer Science: James Berggum, mechanical engineering

• College of Health and Human Services: Francis Yuen, social work

• College of Natural Sciences and Mathematics: Sukhbir Mahajan, physics and astronomy

• College of Social Sciences and Interdisciplinary Studies: Amy Qiao-ming Liu, sociology

The Outstanding Service Awards Program honors outstanding contributions and leadership to the University. This year’s recipients are:

• College of Arts and Letters: Amy Heckathorn, English

• College of Business Administration: Chiang Wang, management

• College of Education: Jan Cross, teacher education

• College of Engineering and Computer Science: Jean-Pierre Bayard, electrical and electronic engineering

• College of Health and Human Services: Fred Baldini, kinesiology and health science

• College of Natural Sciences and Mathematics: Laurel Hef-fernan, biological sciences

• College of Social Sciences and Interdisciplinary Studies: John Henry, economics

• Non-instructional Faculty: Randolph Solaria, intercollegiate athletics.

At the event, all award recipients will be presented with a plaque and each will be acknowledged on plaques displayed in the office of the dean of each College.

Jazzee Dance Company celebrates 25th anniversary

Jazzee Dance Company, the University’s principal student performing dance troupe, marks its 25th anniversary with Experience This! The showcase of dance choreography will take the stage at 8 p.m., May 7-11, in the Dancespace, Solano Hall 1010. Originally designed to give dance students experience in developing their own choreography, Jazzee has grown into a multi-faceted production company with a touring company that promotes the University’s dance program by performing at local schools.

Experience This! is an evening of dance performances inspired by a wide variety of musical styles, including rhythm and blues, rock, punk, and hip-hop. It marks the culmination of work by CSUS senior dance majors Melissa Flewle, Nyn-ebuku George, Marissa Williams and Veronica Willam, under the direction of Dale Scholl.

Tickets are $13 general, $10 students or seniors and $8 children. For more information, call (916) 278-7033.

LONGEVITY

exhibits offering information on services provided by community organizations, as well as resident complexes and other segments of the private sector serving the aging population.

“We are very excited to provide this opportunity for a multi-generational community event, and we hope everyone will find it informative and fun,” says Cheryl Osborne, a CSUS professor and director of the gerontology program. The Longevity Fair is free and open to the public, but pre-registration will be preferred. Lunch will be available for $6 for pre-registered attendees, or $12 at the door. Parking is available by obtaining a parking permit at the information booths located at each end of the campus. Passenger drop-off and pick-up is available in the loading zones in front of the University Union.

For more information about the Longevity Fair, call the gerontology department at (916) 278-7163.
