President Gerth announces retirement

Donald R. Gerth, the longest serving president at California State University, Sacramento, announced his retirement as president during Thursday’s fall address to the campus community. He will leave the presidency in the summer of 2003.

Gerth said most of all it has been the people he has worked with who have made his job enjoyable. Gerth said, “It is the people who give us our strength and make us what we are. There are more opportunities for all people, for all backgrounds, to absorb new knowledge and to grow strong together from their experiences at CSUS. We have taken significant steps to reflect—in our students, faculty and staff—the diversity that is California. That diversity makes all our lives richer and brings tremendous strength.”

Gerth was appointed as CSUS president in November 1983 and took office on July 1, 1984. He has spent 44 years in higher education within the California State University system where he began in 1958 as a member of the department of government and later associate dean at San Francisco State. Since then he has served the system in numerous capacities and is now its senior administrator, having served in presidencies at CSU Sacramento and Dominguez Hills for a total of 27 years.

Gerth began working at 13 and has been employed since. He left high school at age 16 and entered the University of Chicago under an early entrance program and graduated at 18. He went on to earn two additional degrees there in political science with an emphasis in Asian politics. He took his first teaching job as a substitute high school math instructor in 1947 in order to earn money for graduate study.

Prior to joining the CSU system he had been on the admissions staff at the University of Chicago and served with World University Services in Southeast Asia. He served in the U.S. Air Force as an officer in intelligence and finance during and after the Korean War.

Prior to taking the two presidencies, Gerth served as a faculty member, in student services, as a dean, and as an academic vice president.

Gerth’s 18 years on the Sacramento campus have resulted in a number of accomplishments including:

• The campus has experienced significant structural growth. In his tenure buildings, laboratories and related facilities have been built and modernized through nearly $100 million in public and private funding.

• Newly constructed buildings provide more than 1.2 million square feet of space.

• Place Hall, for example, is a unique partnership between the campus and the U.S. Geological Survey.

• Gerth oversaw the growth and development of seven Colleges and the addition of a School of the Arts.

• He created programs such as the Center for California Studies, designed to serve the entire state as a resource for history, culture and public policy in California and the Center for Public Policy Dispute Resolution to assist government agencies in mediated, less costly, settlements of issues.

• He led efforts to improve global education through work with UNESCO, the United Nations University, and as president of the International Association of University Presidents.

• Working with the Sacramento Area Trade and Commerce Organizations, Gerth developed programs to study and stimulate the economy of the Capital Region.

• Gerth has served as chair of United Way and on the boards of SACTO and the Chamber of Commerce and initiated the University’s participation as a founding member of the Northern California World Trade Center, where he is the chair of the board.

See GERTH, Page 4

Campus to mark Sept. 11 anniversary

Students, faculty and staff will commemorate the events of Sept. 11, 2001 with a special community memorial at 10 a.m., Wednesday, Sept. 11, in the University Union Ballroom.

“This is a University community memorial that recognizes the tragedies of Sept. 11, 2001, and provides the University, through our own talents, the opportunity to make that recognition,” said Rollin Potter, director of the School of the Arts and organizer for the event.

The hour-long memorial will feature student, faculty and alumni speakers including Bob Buckley, chair of the Faculty Senate, and Eric Herrera, president of the Associated Students. Dennis Schmitz, emeritus faculty and former Sacramento City poet laureate, and Joshua McKinney, professor of English, will read poems.

Musical selections by University performers will include “Fanfare for the Common Plan” by the Faculty Brass Ensemble, conducted by professor Gary Dishwor; “America the Beautiful” and the “Star Spangled Banner” performed by the Symphonic Wind Ensemble, conducted by professor Robert Halseth and sung by music student Janelle Laurenti; and Johannes Brahms’ “String Quartet No. 1” by the Sun Quartet. University President Donald R. Gerth will give closing remarks.

“I think people will come away with a meditative reflection, with a deeper understanding of what America is all about,” Potter said. “The country has had these tragedies. It does come back and it does move ahead.”

The memorial will also include signature books and a photography exhibition. Most of the photos were taken at Ground Zero at the World Trade Center in the first few weeks following the attack and many have never been shown before.

“It really shows what went on there in the first few days,” said Elizabeth O’Brien, visual resources specialist in the library, who helped organize the collection.

Staff from the campus psychological counseling services also will be available in the University Union throughout the day. In conjunction with the memorial, the University will also republish its “Principles of Community,” a campuswide statement encouraging mutual respect and understanding.

The memorial is free and open to the public. Seating is limited.

For more information, contact public affairs at 278-6156.

See Principles of Community Page 2

California Conference looks at higher education master plan

University leaders, political insiders and others will meet for a two-day look at the future of California’s groundbreaking Master Plan for Higher Education on Thursday and Friday, Sept. 26 and 27 at the Sacramento Convention Center.

The conference is sponsored by the Center for California Studies and the Institute for Higher Education Leadership and Policy, which are both at CSUS.

Among about 50 panelists will be Patrick Callan, president of the National Center for Public Policy and Higher Education; be Milton Chen, executive director of the George Lucas Educational Foundation.

Panel sessions will be on such topics as diversity, vocational education, accountability, preparing faculty, global perspectives on higher education, and faculty governance. The final session will be on the progress of the Legislative’s Joint Committee to Develop a Master Plan for Preschool Through University.

Among about 301 panels will be Patrick Callan, president of the National Center for Public Policy and Higher Education.

See CONFERENCE, Page 2

New Neighbor—Work is nearly completed on a new building for the newly renamed College of Continuing Education, one of a number of improvement projects that continued on campus this summer. Among other projects being completed this semester are a new parking structure near the University Union and a small building near Tahoe Hall with overflow offices and classroom space.

Photo/Sherry Mark
In conjunction with the Sept. 11 memorial on campus, the campus community is being asked to reacquaint themselves with the Principles of Community that were adopted last year.

WE STRIVE to create a climate in which all members of the University can work together and learn from one another.

WE ACCEPT and respect individuals whose values, ideas, beliefs and life experiences may be different from our own, as long as those differences do not violate the basic civil rights of others.

WE BEHAVE in ways that are ethical, honest, equitable, trust-worthv, and respectful to preserve the spirit of the community.

WE BELIEVE that free inquiry and free expression are basic tenets in the life of the University.

WE DO NOT tolerate verbal or written abuse, threats, harassment, intimidation or violence under any circumstances, while at the same time, recognizing that freedom of expression may create discomfort in others.

WE AFFIRM the inherent dignity in each of us and acknowledge that our society carries within it historically rooted biases and bigotry.

FINALLY, WE SHARE the responsibility to provide the best learning environment for all, and we recognize and appreciate that community cannot exist without unity of purpose, cooperative action and above all mutual respect.

The CSUS Bulletin welcomes submissions to the Professional Activities Section from faculty, administrators and staff. Items are run on a space available basis. They should be no longer than 75 words and may be submitted to bulletin@csus.edu or faxed to 278-5290.

CELESTE ROSEBERRY-MORRISON, speech pathology and audiology, had an article on “Serving Children From the Culture of Poverty: Practical Strategies for Speech-Language Pathologists” published in The ASHA Leader.

LAUREN O’HANLON, speech pathology and audiology, presented a paper on “Current Theories on Normal Aging and Word Retrieval Processes” and a poster on “Minority Applications in Graduate School” at the American Speech, Language and Hearing Association annual meeting in New Orleans in November. She also presented a workshop on “Speech and Voice Technology: A Practical Workshop for a More Powerful Clinical Practice.”

JOHN ADDICOTT, speech pathology and audiology, co-authored a chapter on “College and University Student Counseling Centers: Inevitable Boundary Shifts and Dual Roles” in a book titled Dual Relationships and Psychotherapy.

In memory of Anita Carney, Public Affairs, who died on May 14. In her capacity as a Public Affairs employee and retired employee, information appears only online on Capital University News at the request of at least one family member. campus community may submit information for the family, but must have the prior approval of a family member and must provide that family member’s contact name and phone number. We do not use photos. Submit information at www.csus.edu/pa/memoriam.html or call public affairs at 276-4156.

Catherine L. Hilby, Office of the University Librarian, co-authored a book on “Empowering Women and Their Children” for the San Francisco Democratic Women’s Forum. The speakers focused on a welfare reform bill aimed at improving childcare and work allocations. The bill also focuses on helping mothers who are attempting to complete degrees.

LUIE EQUILLA, psychological counseling services, co-authored a chapter on “College and University Student Counseling Centers: Inevitable Boundary Shifts and Dual Roles” in a book titled Dual Relationships and Psychotherapy.

RICH BROWN, academic affairs, chaired a panel discussion “Budgeting Across Three States” at the summer meeting of the Academic Affairs Resource Center of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities in Monterey on August 22.

NOREEN KELLough and PAMELA O’KANE, teacher education, were selected by the Beginning Teachers Support and Assessment Program to present a series of hands-on workshops during the 2002-03 academic year. The workshops will emphasize having fun with reading and writing through the use of puppetry, reader’s theater, physical activities and games.

MARK MENEALLY, English, will have an essay titled “A Republican View from Todgers’ Back-Side, Or ‘Partly Spiritual, Partly Spiritual’ in Martin Chuzzlewit,” published in the next issue of Dickens Studies Annual: Essays in Victorian Fiction. He will have an article titled “The Games of the Prison Children” in Little Dorrit” reprised in the 2002 volume of Nineteenth Century Literary Criticism.

MARY REDDICK, library, co-authored an article on “Open Courseware and Shared Knowledge in Higher Education” which was published in Behavior Research Methods, Instruments & Computers.

RONALD COLEMAN, biological sciences, presented a paper “Egg Size in Cichlid Fishes” at the 10th meeting of the International Society of Behavioural Ecologists, July 9 on Montreal, Canada.

NICK TRUJILLO, communication studies, published an article titled “In Search of Nanny’s History: Reproducing Gender Ideology in Family Stories,” in the spring 2002 issue of Women’s Studies in Communication.
Crime drop linked to ‘broken windows policing’

There is a significant link between targeting minor crime and a drop in serious crime, even when community factors such as unemployment and the number of young people are considered, according to a study from the California Institute for County Government at CSUS. The study, “Does ‘Broken Windows’ Policing Reduce Serious Crime?” examined all California counties from 1989 to 2000. It found for the first time a generalizable statistical tie between so-called “broken windows” policing and a drop in felony property crime while also controlling for many social and economic factors. It’s also one of the few studies to look at the strategy on a large scale, rather than a neighborhood or community level.

Broken windows policing assumes that serious crime can be reduced by strongly enforcing minor crimes such as graffiti, property damage, prostitution, public drinking and the like. It has been the subject of heated debate, with many police agencies adopting it and critics charging it leads to police harassment.

Previous studies have tended to focus on single jurisdictions, and haven’t been able to discount numerous other possible factors when they discovered drops in serious crime.

This new study compared both misdemeanor arrests and misdemeanor charges filed to the overall number of arrests and charges. More misdemeanor arrests and charges were taken to indicate a local law enforcement tendency to engage in broken windows policing. That tendency was then compared to the felony property crime rate to see if a link existed.

“We’ve tested the spirit of the broken windows theory, and we’ve found a relationship between targeting misdemeanors and reducing serious crime,” says John L. Worrall, the CSU San Bernardino criminal justice professor who authored the study.

Worrall cautions that the focus of this study was finding a statistical link between enforcing minor crimes and a drop in serious crime. So it doesn’t conclusively prove a cause and effect relationship, and it doesn’t estimate how much of a drop in crime is seen when a community pursues a broken windows strategy.

“What makes this study unique is all the other factors we controlled for, and that even after we did that we still found a strong statistical relationship between broken windows policing and a reduction in serious crime,” Worrall says. “This is by no means the last word on the broken windows theory, but it is an important contribution.”

The study controlled for a number of other factors known to influence the serious crime rate, including: 1) deterrence — the probability of being arrested for a property crime and the percentage of people currently in custody; 2) economics — the per-capita welfare and unemployment rates, and 3) demographics.

The report is available online at the California Institute for County Government website at www.cicg.org.

---

HONORS LUNCHEON

The CSUS Alumni Association will sponsor the annual Honors Luncheon on Friday, Oct. 18 at the Yamshon Alumni Center, from noon to 1:30 p.m. The event provides an opportunity for academic departments to recognize graduates for their accomplishments and strengthens the University’s ties with its alumni and the community.

Tickets are $25 per person and must be reserved by calling alumni affairs at 278-6295 by Friday, October 4.

PRE-GAME PARTIES

The CSUS Alumni Association will be hosting pre-game parties at the Yamshon Alumni Center before every home football game.

The parties are open to everyone and feature activities for adults and children. Refreshments will be available in the library, and by request from public safety and the student affairs.

STATE BENEFITS SEMINAR

The CSUS Alumni Association and the Golden1 Credit Union will co-sponsor a seminar on state employment benefits from 5:30 to 7 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 17 at the Yamshon Alumni Center. The seminar is open to the public.

Making media friendly

The Bulletin spoke with Louise Scanland, classroom services, and Allan Hinderstein, distance learning, from University Media Services about their jobs.

What do people think you do?

Louise Scanland: “They think that we are responsible for everything—the drapes and the technology and cleaning the floor. We get a lot of calls that we forward on to facilities management and telephone repair.”

What do you really do?

Allan Hinderstein: “We support academic programs. My area is in charge of distance learning. We have classes that are on the web and three different cable channels. UMS works with faculty and staff to provide resources for faculty to use in teaching their courses and we have full-time staff that are available to assist faculty in producing videos for special instruction modules.”

Please describe your office.

Scanland: “Classroom services is responsible for the media that supports classroom instruction. We schedule, issue and deliver equipment. We make minor equipment repairs and place equipment in classrooms. We also have students and staff who will go out in the classrooms when there is a problem.”

Hinderstein: “My area focuses on the live television instruction. We have inter-active studio classrooms. If faculty need PowerPoint slides or graphics designed, we have areas that can do that.”

Something that might surprise people about your office is...

Scanland: “We are responsible for the equipment in more than 203 rooms including 149 smart classrooms and we are scheduled to add another 26 this year.”

Hinderstein: “We run the equivalent of five television stations. People are often surprised at the reach and connectivity that the campus has using the technology I’ve mentioned. We have sent classes to other CSUs, community colleges and even other countries such as Japan, France and Australia. There really isn’t anywhere we can’t reach as long as they have satellite or Internet technology.”

What is the biggest challenge your office faces?

Scanland: “We have a lot but our biggest is chalk dust. It is insidious and acts like fine sandpaper. We clean all the equipment several times a year and two weeks after it doesn’t look like we’ve done a thing.”

Hinderstein: “Keeping up with technology. We provide a 24-hour, seven day a week service and when we go home all the tape machines have to be loaded and ready to broadcast all night.”

What is the question you get asked the most?

Scanland: “Why can’t students check out laptops or LCD projectors?”

Hinderstein: “Advice on various technology purchases.”

---

On the Job

‘Breakfast Club’ series offers informal visits with area leaders

After a successful inaugural year, the CSUS Alumni Association will again host its Breakfast Club Speakers Series. The early morning talks feature a range of guests speaking on hot topics in Northern California and beyond. Each week, the first breakfast, with guest, will be held at 7:30 a.m. in the Steven Lee Yamshon Alumni Center. The series will offer two speakers this fall and two in the spring, chosen and sponsored by CSUS Alumni Association chapters.

Scheduled topics and speakers are:

- Tuesday, Oct. 15: “Restoring the Trust: Ethics in Business,” Ken Macias, founder and managing partner, Macias, Gini and Co. LLP.
- Tuesday, April 8: “Sacramento and the Arts,” Jill Kaiser, executive director, Metro Chamber of Commerce Arts and Business Council.

Previous speakers included Sacramento city council member Steve Cohn, Sacramento Bee political columnist Dan Walters, Roseville city manager Allen Johnson and Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce president Matt Mahaod.

Seating is limited. For reservations or additional information, contact the CSUS Alumni Association at (916) 278-6295.

---

CRIME STATISTICS

In compliance with the Jeanne Clery Disclosure of Campus Security Policy and Student Right to Know Act, CSUS has made crime statistics available online at www.csus.edu/police/cleryact.htm. Reported crimes that occurred on campus, in certain off-campus buildings or on property owned or controlled by CSUS and on public property within, or immediately adjacent to and accessible from the campus, during the last three years are included. The report also includes institutional policies concerning campus security, alcohol and drug use, crime prevention, the reporting of crimes, sexual assault and other safety matters. Print copies are available in the library, and by request from public safety and the student affairs.

FREE RIDES

Employees commuting to campus at least three days a week or 60 percent of their work schedule using an alternative to the single occupant vehicle may participate in the guaranteed ride home program.

The program offers participating employees a free ride home in the case of emergency, such as a sick family member. Those living within 20 miles of campus receive a taxi ride, and those living more than 20 miles of campus are provided a rental vehicle.

The free ride is available six times a year. Details: Trish Evans, employee transportation coordinator, at evans@csus.edu or 278-7527.
TUE

tuesday, sept. 3
Fall 2002 semester begins.

wednesday, sept. 4
UVR, alternative music concert, noon, Serna Plaza adjacent to the University Union. (916) 278-6997.

thursday, sept. 5
"University Jazz at Play," activities, entertainment, live music and prices, 10 a.m. - 8 p.m., University Union. (916) 278-6997.

Spiderman, outdoor movie, 8 p.m., Serna Plaza adjacent to the University Union. (916) 278-6997.

friday, sept. 6
"Works by Joseph Raffael and University Union Flagleblast," art exhibit, 10 a.m. - 4 p.m., Tuesdays - Saturdays, University Library Gallery. (916) 278-4189. Opening reception 5 - 8 p.m. - Continues to Nov. 8.

saturday, sept. 7
Hornet Harrier Classic, cross country/track, 8 a.m., Hornet Stadium. (916) 278-6996.

wednesday, sept. 11
"Sep. 11 Memorial," music, 6997.

sunday, sept. 15
"Tuvan Throat Singers," World Music Recital Hall, activities include a BBQ, live music, various world sport games and the opportunity to check out the potential Olympic Games. Reservations are requested by Sept. 6. Call 278-4040.

Tuesday, Sept. 3

‘BAREFOOT TO BOOTS’ ON THE WATER

President and Mrs. Donald R. Gerth and the senior administrative staff invite campus employees and their families to join them at this year’s faculty and staff reception.

"Barefoot to Boots," from 5:30 - 8 p.m., Friday, Sept. 13.

The free event takes place at the Nimbus Flat State Recreation Area adjacent to the CSUS Aquatic Center located at 1901 Hazel Ave. in Rancho Cordova. Activities include a BBQ, live music, various world sport games and the opportunity to check out the potential Olympic Games. Reservations are requested by Sept. 6. Call 278-4040.

Gerth

Continued from page 1

• He led new academic initiatives including a joint doctoral program with UC Santa Barbara in public history, a master’s degree program in public policy and administration, and the first master’s degree in software engineering in a public California university. Additional doctoral programs are under development.

• Fundraising began at the University in earnest under Gerth, who oversaw the successful $54 million 50th anniversary campaign. Contributions and non-state funds have continued to grow. In 1999-2000 the University acquired approximately $11 million in voluntary support from private sources and $38 million in grants and contracts.

Gerth has served on numerous boards both international and local. He is a past president of the International Association of University Presidents, and currently serves on the board and as vice chair of the United Nations University.

Post retirement he will continue at the University in an emeritus role. He said he plans to teach, write about public policy and higher education in California, as well as internationally, and to remain active in higher education.

The process of finding his replacement will begin when the chair and the CSU Board of Trustees appoint a trustee for the selection of the president. The committee will be composed of the board chair, three trustees designated by the committee chair and the chancellor. There is also an advisory group of representatives from the campus.

Volleyball vs. Idaho State, 7 p.m., Hornet Gym. Tickets $5 adult/$4 seniors and non-CSUS students/2 children ages 6 - 12/CSUS students with ID and children under 5 free. Tickets at the event. Season tickets available at (916) 278-4590.

"Envisioning a State of Learning: Moving California’s Master Plan for Higher Education into the 21st Century, 14th annual Envisioning California Conference, panel discussions, 11 a.m. - 6 p.m., Sacramento Convention Center, 1400 J Street. (916) 278-6906. Continues Sept. 27.

friday, sept. 27
Men’s soccer vs. Loyola Marymount, 4 p.m., soccer field. Tickets $5 general/$4 non CSUS students and seniors/CSUS students free with ID. Tickets at the event. (916) 278-4590.

"Envisioning a State of Learning: Moving California’s Master Plan for Higher Education into the 21st Century, 14th annual Envisioning California Conference, panel discussions, 9 a.m. - 6 p.m., Sacramento Convention Center, 1400 J Street. (916) 278-6906.

saturday, sept. 28
Volleyball vs. Weber State, 7 p.m., Hornet Gym. Tickets $3 adult/$4 seniors and non-CSUS students/2 children ages 6 - 12/CSUS students with ID and children under 5 free. Tickets at the event. Season tickets available at (916) 278-4590.

sunday, sept. 29
"War or Peace: World Religions Shaping the Future: Western Traditions," panel discussions about Judaism, Christianity and Islam with CSUS professors Brad Nystrom, Jeffery Brodd, Maria Jaoudi and Richard Shek, 2 - 5 p.m., University Union. (916) 278-6444.

wednesday, sept. 25
Six Ounce Glove, alternative rock concert, noon, Serna Plaza adjacent to the University Union. (916) 278-6997.

sunday, sept. 21
Football vs. Cal Poly, 6 p.m., Hornet Stadium. Tickets $15 reserved/ $10 general/$7 seniors and non-CSUS students/CSUS students free with ID. Tickets available at CSUS Ticket Office at (916) 278-4323, or at Tickets.com at (916) 766-2277. Season tickets available at (916) 278-4590.

wednesday, sept. 22
Men’s soccer vs. Dominican, 3 p.m., soccer field. Tickets $5 general/$4 non CSUS students and seniors/CSUS students free with ID. Tickets at the event. (916) 278-4590.

sunday, sept. 20
Six Ounce Glove, alternative rock concert, noon, Serna Plaza adjacent to the University Union. (916) 278-6997.

Men's soccer vs. Saint Mary’s, 1 p.m., soccer field. Tickets $5 general/$4 non CSUS students and seniors/CSUS students free with ID. Tickets at the event. (916) 278-4590.

Women’s soccer vs. Saint Mary’s, 1 p.m., soccer field. Tickets $5 general/$4 non CSUS students and seniors/CSUS students free with ID. Tickets at the event. (916) 278-4590.

"War or Peace: World Religions Shaping the Future: Asian Traditions," panel discussions about Hinduism, Buddhism and Confucianism with CSUS professors Brad Nystrom, Jeffery Brodd, Maria Jaoudi and Richard Shek, 2 - 5 p.m., University Union. (916) 278-6444.

wednesday, sept. 25
Six Ounce Glove, alternative rock concert, noon, Serna Plaza adjacent to the University Union. (916) 278-6997.

Volleyball vs. San Francisco, 7 p.m., Hornet Gym. Tickets $5 adult/$4 seniors and non-CSUS students/2 children ages 6 - 12/CSUS students with ID and children under 5 free. Tickets at the event. Season tickets available at (916) 278-4590.

sunday, sept. 21
"What ‘Nation of Islam’ is About," presentation by Minister Isaiah Willknots, Daycare and 10 After, Wednesday, Sept. 13.

Women’s soccer vs. Saint Mary’s, 1 p.m., soccer field. Tickets $5 general/$4 non CSUS students and seniors/CSUS students free with ID. Tickets at the event. (916) 278-4590.

"What ‘Nation of Islam’ is About," presentation by Minister Isaiah Willknots, Daycare and 10 After, Wednesday, Sept. 13.

Projecting a State of Learning: Moving California’s Master Plan for Higher Education into the 21st Century, 14th annual Envisioning California Conference, panel discussions, 9 a.m. - 6 p.m., Sacramento Convention Center, 1400 J Street. (916) 278-6906.

sunday, sept. 21
Football vs. Cal Poly, 6 p.m., Hornet Stadium. Tickets $15 reserved/ $10 general/$7 seniors and non-CSUS students/CSUS students free with ID. Tickets available at CSUS Ticket Office at (916) 278-4323, or at Tickets.com at (916) 766-2277. Season tickets available at (916) 278-4590.

thursday, sept. 26
Thursday, Sept. 10
3 p.m., Executive Committee
1:30 p.m., Curriculum Policies Committee

3 p.m., Faculty Policies Committee

Tuesday, Sept. 3
1:30 p.m., Curriculum Policies Committee

Tuesday, Sept. 4
1 p.m., Faculty Policies Committee

Tuesday, Sept. 10
3 p.m., Executive Committee
1:30 p.m., Curriculum Subcommittee, tentative

All meetings are in Sacramento Hall 275 unless otherwise noted.

CSUS Library Office

CSUS Library Office

CSUS Library Office

CSUS Library Office

CSUS Library Office

CSUS Library Office