In what term(s) will this course typically be offered?

Fall, Spring

Does this course require a room for its final exam?

Yes, final exam requires a room

Does this course replace an existing experimental course?

No

This course complies with the credit hour policy:

Yes

Justification for course proposal:

This course is being modified to fit with new program requirements (please see appropriate form B); a significant portfolio project that becomes part of a student's e-portfolio is being added to the course and the number of units changed appropriately (4-unit course).

Because of recent changes to the GE program (requiring upper division GE in three different areas) and to best serve our majors through a 4 unit-portfolio course, we are removing the course from Area C; however, in order to continue its support of GE, the Department plans to offer courses such as its popular ENGL 191A: Masterpieces of World Cinema (upper division Area C2) more frequently.

This course will continue to satisfy the Writing Intensive requirement.

This is one course in the ENGL 180 series that currently meets a requirement in the Liberal Studies Major with Concentration in Literature. In consultation with the Liberal Studies Program, this course will be deleted from a revised Liberal Studies Major with Concentration in Literature.

Please see attached consultation with the Liberal Studies Program and Ethnic Studies Program.

Course Description: (Not to exceed 80 words and language should conform to catalog copy.)

Designed to help students gain an understanding of the diversity as well as the similarities among various Asian American writers. How do the categories of race, gender, and class affect the way different characters construct their cultural experiences and fashion their personal identities? By studying the variety of processes through which different protagonists "become American"--through assimilation, appropriation, or "translation"--students should arrive at a better understanding of how we all construct our own identities.

Description of the Expected Learning Outcomes: Describe outcomes using the following format: "Students will be able to: 1), 2), etc."

Expected Learning Outcomes—Students will be able to:

- 1) apply and analyze content knowledge appropriate to Asian-American literature.
- 2) apply critical reading strategies to a variety of texts, which may include written, oral, or visual works, to analyze language and texts using appropriate critical, theoretical, rhetorical, and disciplinary methodologies.
- 3) produce a variety of written texts that—in a process that includes revision based on feedback from peers and instructors—analyze language, ideas, and forms and creatively engage with the writing traditions of our various disciplines.
- 4) employ primary and, where suitable, secondary sources using appropriate disciplinary methodologies.

Will more than one section of this course be offered?

No

General Education Details - Writing Intensive

Section 1.

Indicate how the course meets the following criteria for Writing Intensive. Relate the statement to the course syllabus and outline. Be as succinct as possible. Courses must comply with the general criteria for Writing Intensive courses:The course must build on the basic skills and knowledge acquired by students in their foundation courses in General Education or the major.

This course builds on GE area C2 and required lower division courses in the major (ENGL 40A, 40B, 50A, 50B, 65) that analyze and compare relations between literature, cultural production, history, and cultural change.

The course must expand students' knowledge by examining complex issues.

This course examines the complex nature of Asian American Literature, focusing on the variety of ways literature can be analyzed and situated in cultural context; theories about the connections between literature, culture, and history; and knowledge of the specific texts and authors related to Asian American Literature.

The course must expand students' abilities to reason logically and to write clearly in prose.

The assignments listed below require students to advance an organized, detailed, and logical argument that advances a position about literary texts, their role in culture, and their relation to history. Students will do so by engaging with a variety of complex and sophisticated texts from this field.

Students must be required to write not less than 5,000 words of clear and logical prose (not to include simple narrative or diary writing).

Homework (5 pages)

Creative Project & Reflection (4 pages)

Paper 1 with Outline (3-4 pages)

Mid-term Exam (2 pages)

Paper 2 with Outline (5-6 pages)

Final Exam (2 pages)

Instructors must work actively with students to sharpen analytical abilities and to improve their writing styles.

The attached syllabus indicates opportunities for drafting, feedback, and revision of a variety of writing assignments.

Writing assignments must be spread over the entire semester (with at least 3,000 of the 5,000 words due before the last two weeks of instruction).

The attached syllabus indicates due dates for writing assignments over the course of the semester; a minimum of 3000 words are due before the last two weeks of instruction.

Instructors must provide timely responses and evaluation of each writing assignment, and evaluations and comments must not only be about the subject matter content but also about writing skills.

I return papers and exams and homework within 2 weeks of submission deadline.

Section 2.

WRITING INTENSIVE

Recognizing the value of writing in all disciplines, as a tool in learning as well as conveying knowledge, the Academic Senate mandated that the teaching of writing be an all university responsibility. To that end, the Senate recommended that three units of Writing Intensive be a graduation requirement.

The chief aim of Writing Intensive is to promote students' ability to write logically and clearly, using standard written English, in their major discipline or in a discipline outside their major.

Course Requirement

The Writing Intensive requirement can be satisfied in one of three ways: a) Departments/programs may specify that the Writing Intensive requirement must be met in the major; b) In cases where the requirement is not specified as required in the major, the requirement must be satisfied by taking an Writing Intensive course in the General Education program, or c) student's choice. Departments/programs wishing to have courses approved as Writing Intensive must submit the course syllabus to the General Education Review Committee which shall review and approve the course for listing as Writing Intensive. (General Education courses must also be approved for G.E. listing in the normal way.)

Criteria

Courses designated as Writing Intensive build on the basic skills and knowledge acquired by students in their foundation courses in General Education or the major. These courses are to expand students' knowledge by examining complex issues and they are to advance students' abilities to reason logically and to write clearly in prose.

The English Composition and Critical Thinking courses and the Writing Proficiency Examination are prerequisites to all Writing Intensive courses. Some Writing Intensive courses listed in the General Education program may explore more specialized topics and may thus require prerequisites, but most are to be courses of a broader nature and generally require no formal preparation in the discipline offering the course. Writing Intensive courses not in the General Education Program may also have prerequisites, but they should focus on the broad and general rather than the more technical areas of a discipline.

Students are required to write not less than 5,000 words (20 typed, double-spaced pages) of clear and logical prose in Writing Intensive classes. (Once a course is approved for Writing Intensive, all students enrolled in the class, whether they are taking it to fulfill their Writing Intensive requirement or not, must write no less than 5,000 words in order to receive a passing grade.)

An important aspect of the task of instructors is working actively with students to sharpen their analytical abilities and to improve their writing styles. Simple narrative and diary-type writing will not fulfill the requirement.

Writing assignments must be analytical in nature, discipline specific and spread out over the entire semester. (At least a total of 3,000 words of writing assignments must be due before the last two weeks of instruction.) Instructors must provide timely responses and evaluations of each writing assignment. Evaluations and comments must only be about the subject matter content but also address the writing skills. Additionally, evaluations and comments must be given to the students early enough to be reviewed before their next formal writing assignment is due.

Recommendations for Implementation

Although Writing Intensive courses have a 5,000 word requirement, this word requirement can be met by both formal and informal writing assignments. Instructors might require 10 pages each of formal and informal assignments (journals, responses to reading, for example). Yet all should require analysis in order to promote learning as well as improved writing skills.

Although the number of writing assignments depends upon the discipline and nature of the course, a study conducted by the Writing Intensive Committee in Spring 1988 discovered that those students who had been assigned a number of shorter assignments (usually four 5 page ones) reported that their writing had improved as a result, in part, of more frequent feedback. Those with only two long assignments reported that they did not feel the assignments had helped them improve their writing.
