Justification for course proposal:

RPTA is in the process of re-launching our graduate program after our three-campus graduate collaboration dissolved last fall. Part of the change is to recognize how our field has changed, and for several courses, the tag line "...in Recreation, Parks and Tourism" is being changed to "Recreation, Hospitality, Parks and Nonprofit." In general, some areas of the department are moving away from recreation (most notably Hospitality and Nonprofit Management), and while the graduate courses can serve a broad range of students, this shift needs to be recognized.

Additionally, our courses have long been out of sequential order, and under the instruction of Janett Torset, we have created new courses with representational numbers, but indicated the actual catalog numbers in the justification for the course. In this way they will be entered correctly in the catalog without causing too much confusion for committees. To summarize...

Curriculum Workflow -Actual Number when Catalog is Created

200A -200A

200B -200B

200C -201

206A -206

Deactivate Existing Courses

Existing version of RPTA 201 and RPTA 206 will be given new numbers so that the content is not lost as courses are renumbered sequentially.

1. RPTA 201 (number changed to RPTA 221) Advanced Studies in Leisure, Recreation, Parks and Tourism
2. RPTA 206 (number changed to RPTA 208) Liability and Risk Management in Recreation, Parks, and Tourism.

We realize that there is concern that a student may have taken an older version of a particular course such as RPTA 201 and may want to also take the new version. To avoid this overlap, RPTA has spent the last year in teach out mode so that all current students are now at the 500 level.

Finally, we are developing some paired courses. In each case, the undergraduate course is not changing and only the graduate version of the class should be seen as a new course. To summarize...

- RPTA 206 (created here as RPTA 206A)
- RPTA 284
- RPTA 264

This course (RPTA 201 which is submitted as 200C) is an existing course. The only change made in this course is the name and number of the course to align with the sequential order.

Course Description: (Not to exceed 80 words and language should conform to catalog copy.)

This course examines the foundation and role of recreation, hospitality, parks, and nonprofit management on the society. Discussions will address the historical, political, social and economic impact on the recreation, hospitality, parks and nonprofits industry. Students will identify evidence-based practice in the literature and identify theories associated in recreation, hospitality, parks, and nonprofit management.
