Justification for course proposal:

Reactivate JOUR 197B. The State Hornet is growing rapidly and has recently won several national honors. This course will allow us to create unique learning outcomes for student editors and senior reporters who have prior experience on The State Hornet.

This course was part of our curriculum for many years. We experimented with combining JOUR 197A and 197B into a single course. But that has created issues, particularly with learning outcomes. Student editors who oversee dozens of reporters, along with senior reporters working on deep enterprise stories, need different learning outcomes than students new to the State Hornet.

Description of the Expected Learning Outcomes: Describe outcomes using the following format: "Students will be able to: 1), 2), etc."

As editors or senior reporters of The State Hornet news organization, students will be able to:

- 1) Apply news judgment to identify relevant and interesting stories on multiple platforms, and assign them to reporters
- 2) Select interesting, compelling news stories and tell them with skill on The State Hornet's web site
- 3) Supervise the production of The State Hornet's web site, applying key elements of multimedia news design
- 4) Conclude that stories are free of mistakes and that stories meet the ethical obligations of a journalist
- 5) Provide guidance and mentorship to students taking the State Hornet for the first time.

Assessment Strategies: A description of the assessment strategies (e.g., portfolios, examinations, performances, pre-and post-tests, conferences with students, student papers) which will be used by the instructor to determine the extent to which students have achieved the learning outcomes noted above.

Critiques (Weekly) (ELOs 1, 2, 3, 4) - The State Hornet faculty advisor writes a weekly critique highlighting strengths and flaws of each story published during the prior week. The critique is shared with everyone in the class. It is not graded - it is an informal, constructive way for the advisor to tell students how their stories do or do not reflect journalism fundamentals.

Portfolio evaluation (Final project): (ELOs 1, 2, 3, 4)

Professional conduct: (ELOs 3, 4, 5) - Students are evaluated on class participation, adherence to deadlines and ability to work with and motivate junior staffers. Students are also evaluated on application of ethical journalism principles, as outlined in the Society of Professional Journalists' Code of Ethics, for their own work and the work they edit.
