General Education Details - Area C2: Humanities

Section 1.

Indicate in written statements how the course meets the following criteria for Area C2. Relate the statements to the course syllabus and outline. Be as succinct as possible.

Is broad in scope or survey in nature.

The course explores literature across 5 continents and 500 years of human history.

Develops an understanding of and appreciation for the diversity of the human community.

Students explore the human condition across 5 continents and 500 years of history by reading a variety of primary sources. We explore the question of human rights and the value of human life as expressed by diverse cultures and peoples.

Develops a comprehensive understanding and appreciation of the heritage being studied and transmits a knowledge of the Western and Non-Western cultural heritage in the humanities. Students should be able to:

Demonstrate knowledge of the conventions and methods of the study of the humanities.

Students engage in debate and discussion in seminar. Students write essays of various lengths and styles using both formal and informal writing conventions.

Investigate, describe, and analyze the roles and effects of human culture and understanding in the development of human societies.

In class discussion and in formal essays, students are expected to draw conclusions from primary sources. Students use multiple sources to compare and contrast human cultures and societies.

Compare and analyze various conceptions of humankind.

In class discussion and in formal essays, students draw upon multiple primary sources to compare and analyze the human experience across time and place.

Demonstrate knowledge and understanding of the historical development of cultures and civilizations, including their animating ideas and values.

In class discussion and in formal essays students draw upon multiple primary sources to demonstrate their knowledge and understanding of the historical development of cultures and civilizations.

In presenting the contribution and perspectives of people, the coursework addresses at least two of the following:

- Women
- Ethnicity
- Socio-economic status
- · Religious affiliation
- Disabilities
- · Gays & lesbians

The 5 core texts for this course present the experiences of women, different ethnic groups, different socio-economic groups, and different religious groups across 500 years of history.

Includes a writing component described on course syllabus

- I) If course is lower division, formal and/or informal writing assignments encouraging students to think through course concepts using at least one of the following: periodic lab reports, exams which include essay questions, periodic formal writing assignments, periodic journals, reading logs, other. Writing in lower division courses need not be graded, but must, at a minimum, be evaluated for clarity and proper handling of terms, phrases, and concepts related to the course.
- 2) If course is upper division, a minimum of 1500 words of formal, graded writing. [Preferably there should be more than one formal writing assignment and each writing assignment (e.g. periodic lab reports, exams which include essay questions, a research/term paper etc.) should be due in stages throughout the semester to allow the writer to revise after receiving feedback from the instructor. Include an indication of how writing is to be evaluated and entered into course grade determination.]

Students write weekly reflections on their own class participation, which are ungraded. They complete 3 short (1,000-1,250 words) formal essays, which are analytical in focus. The final is a cumulative essay (2,500-3,000 words) that is synthetic and analytical.
