

Support The Faculty Endowment for Student Scholarships

Each spring, the Faculty Senate awards outstanding students scholarships from The Faculty Endowment for Student Scholarships (Faculty Endowment) and the Jean & Louise Faurot Faculty Endowment (Faurot Endowment). The awards are granted in recognition of outstanding student achievement and promise of continued academic success as well as service and contribution to the student's major, department and college, the University and the community.

All faculty are invited to help support these scholarships by making an annual gift to the Faculty Endowment, or using payroll deduction to make a monthly contribution. You can also create your own endowment through a current or estate gift. Please click here to use the Faculty Endowment giving form for payroll deduction. You'll have two choices, support the endowment, which will help grow the fund for the long term, or support the scholarship directly, which will increase the amount available for scholarships now.

It only takes 20 faculty members giving $20 monthly to create an additional scholarship award.

About the Endowments

Since 1994, this faculty-sponsored and administered endowment has provided 101 scholarships to outstanding undergraduate and graduate students. In 2005, the University received a generous contribution from the estate of Professor Jean Faurot, to add to the scholarships available to students. From the cumulative gifts of faculty and Professor Faurot, and through the investment of the endowments, the Faculty Senate was able to award at seven scholarships this past spring in the amount of a semester's tuition and fees.

Scholarship Recipients and Faculty

The endowments are invested by The University Foundation at Sacramento State, and average a 4-5% payout each year.

Together, the Faculty Endowment for Student Scholarships and the Jean & Louise Faurot Faculty Endowment, comprise over $500,000 in endowed funds.
