Today is Indigenous Peoples Day

The campus community is invited to join us Monday, Oct. 9, to celebrate the culture and history of the Native American people. The program begins at 8:30 a.m. in the University Union Ballroom with an opening prayer led by Mary Tarango, chairperson, Wilton Band of Miwok. A series of lectures, panel presentations, and a premiere of the film More Than A Word (morethanawordfilm.com) follows. The film analyzes the NFL's Washington football team and its use of the derogatory term "R*dskins," and examines the history of Native American cultural appropriation. The film previews from 7 to 9 p.m. The filmmakers, brothers John and Kenn Little, will be available after the screening to discuss and share insights on making the film.

A reception and cultural presentation will be held in Ballroom II in honor of the filmmakers. The reception begins at 5:30 p.m. All events are free and open to the public. Contact Dr. Brian Baker (baker@csus.edu) or David Ortega (ortegad@csus.edu) for a listing of the day's events.

Coffee social highlights Critical Language Scholarship

Join International Programs and Global Engagement for light refreshments at "International Coffee Hour," 1 to 2 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 11, in the Global Lounge (Library 1001) and hear about how Sac State students can apply for the prestigious Critical Language Scholarship (CLS). The generous scholarship covers the cost of an intensive overseas language and cultural immersion program run by the U.S. Department of State for American students enrolled at U.S. colleges and universities. We invite students, staff, and faculty to come meet Paige Giarmona, a CLS student ambassador, speak about her experience overseas in the program and learn how students can apply for the scholarship. The deadline to apply is Wednesday, Nov. 15. For more information regarding the event, please contact Stephanie Ingvaldson at ingvaldson@csus.edu.

Redesigning America's Community Colleges: A reading group for 2017-18

During his fall 2016 campus visit, higher education reformer John Tagg recommended this book, Redesigning America's Community Colleges, as highly relevant to our campus, since we fall under the category of "broad-access four-year institutions" heavily influenced by local community colleges. This reading group will discuss the book and consider ways that it can help us redesign Sacramento State.

We'll meet 1 to 2:30 p.m. monthly on the third Friday (fall sessions: Oct. 20, Nov. 17, Dec. 8-9) in the College of Education Resource Room, Eureka 221. Free copies of the book are available to up to 12 participants who can commit to attending all fall and spring meetings, including a two-day conference sponsored by the California Community College Support Network, Dec. 8-9. One copy also will be available at the University Library reserve for those who wish to drop in.

RSVP to the Center for Teaching and Learning at 278-5945 or ctl@csus.edu by Wednesday, Oct. 18. For more information, contact Joel Dubois at 278-5332 or jdubois@csus.edu.

Philosophy visiting scholar to speak on 'Honor and Revenge' on Oct. 25

The Department of Philosophy will host visiting scholar Tamler Sommers of the University of Houston. Sommers, co-host of Very Bad Wizards, a podcast popular in the philosophy field, will speak on "Honor and Revenge" from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 25, in the University Union, Hinde Auditorium. "Honor cultures are sometimes referred to as 'revenge cultures,' because of their enthusiasm for the practice," his abstract reads. "Critics of honor point to this association as another reason to reject honor in favor of dignity. But revenge has many virtues, and the source of these virtues lies in the very features that moralists condemn about it: revenge is costly, revenge is risky, revenge is personal. Because of these features, the act of revenge can demonstrate personal qualities like courage, self-respect, loyalty, and even love. Revenge has a dark side, however, and is often difficult to contain. I'll examine some ways to harness what's good about revenge without suffering unacceptable costs."

Training for making online updates to University Catalog available Oct. 19-20

A new process for updating CourseLeaf University Catalog content will be introduced this fall following the successful launch of the 2017-18 catalog. Beginning with the 2018-19 catalog, departments will be empowered to submit specific content updates online in CourseLeaf. This transition moves the campus away from paperwork and multiple reviews, and will deliver greater accuracy and efficiency. To provide tools and resources to department designees, we will hold the same 90-minute training session multiple times on Thursday, Oct. 19, and Friday, Oct. 20, in AIRC 2007. Please reserve your seat at csus.edu/courseleaf-training by Monday, Oct. 16, and plan to bring a small catalog change for hands-on practice. Please contact Kaitlyn Ehrmantrout at catalog@csus.edu if you have questions. We look forward to seeing you there!

Test of campus-wide Emergency Notification System coming Oct. 19

In conjunction with the "Great California Shake Out," campus officials will conduct a test at 10:19 a.m., Thursday, Oct. 19, of multiple components of Sacramento State's notification system for use in emergencies or other critical events where life and safety are at risk. The test will include text messages, emails, phone calls, campus digital signs, the University home page, loudspeakers, and desktop alerts on some University-owned computers, as well as social networks such as Facebook and Twitter.

Students automatically are signed up to receive Emergency Notification System (ENS) messages on their cellphones and via email, and should use this test to confirm that their devices are registered correctly. Faculty and staff must register for ENS messages at csus.edu/ens/signup if they have not done so previously.

The campus community will receive a short follow-up survey after the test. If you are registered on the system but do not receive an ENS test message at 10:19 a.m. Oct. 19, please provide feedback on the survey so that any system issues can be resolved.
