

Cosumnes River College & The Sacramento State
Center for Practical and Professional Ethics present

17th Annual CRC-CPPE
Fall Ethics Symposium

The Ethics of Providing Healthcare

We want a health care system that is efficient and just, where these criteria are compatible with the idea that anyone who needs care will receive it. But it's important to pay attention to the supply-side—where the specific services will come from and how they will be delivered. Most people think the U.S. does poorly along these lines and that there are ways we could do better. Our speakers will offer their perspectives on how we could.

Friday, December 2, 2022

California State University, Sacramento University Union, Redwood Room

Opening Remarks: 9:00–9:25am PST

Edward Bush, President, Cosumnes River College

Robert S. Nelsen, President, California State University, Sacramento

Rick Schubert, Executive Director, CRC-CPPE Fall Ethics Symposium Series

Session #1: 9:30–10:50am PST

*Facing Goliath: How State Policymakers
Can Address the Harms from Healthcare
Consolidation*

Katherine L. Gudiksen, Senior Health Policy Researcher,
The Source on Healthcare Price and Competition

Session #2: 11:00am–12:20pm PST

Ban, Subsidize, Mandate: Health Policy in the U.S.

James Bailey, Associate Professor of Economics,
Providence College

Session #3: 1:30–2:50pm PST

Distributive Injustice: Race, Age, and Government Healthcare Spending

Melissa Alexander, Professor of Law, University of Wyoming College of Law

Session #4: 3:00–4:20pm PST

Defining Affordable Health

Govind Persad, Assistant Professor, University of Denver
Sturm College of Law

This event is free and open to the general public.
Questions? Please contact Prof. Kyle Swan (kyle.swan@csus.edu).

Sponsored by

