I have two more semesters left at Sac State to finally finish my bachelor's degree in Child Development, however, I do not qualify for any financial aid due to my eligibility being maxed out. I recently went through a difficult divorce and have been financially struggling. I highly considered not finishing my last two semesters, but this scholarship has paved a new path for me.

How will this scholarship help your education at Sac State?

I'm a first generation college student. When I graduated from American River College I was the only one of my mother's children to earn a high school diploma and then continue on to higher education and earn an Associates of Arts in Liberal Studies. The Noyce Scholarship will continue to aid me with guidance and direction in my teaching venture. The Noyce scholarship has afforded me the ability to continue to believe in myself. I am able to dedicate my time and energy to being a successful graduating biological sciences senior. The scholarship has supplemented my income and drastically reduced my work hours. Now my goal I'm currently striving for is to graduate with honors so that I can show my future students where science can take them. This journey of mine has been a struggle but is worth every success and trail I have experienced along the path.

What would you like to say to the person or organization who provided your scholarship?

Navigating academia has been a challenge and through my mistakes I have learned a great deal. I was told in high school that science was not for me by teachers and when I attempted to take biology was removed from the class by my counselor. This scholarship a platform for me to go back to high school and make a positive impact in a students life and encourage students that they can be successful in biology. It has taken me years to work on my confidence in science and to believe in myself wholeheartedly to go after a degree in biological sciences. I have realized that I have to forge my own path. My career through academia has not been linear but through a generous scholarship and an incredible support team my dream of become a teacher seems much more of a reality.

It was only through a full scholarship that I could achieve my masters degree, and I wasn't considering teaching since I didn't think I could afford another degree program. This substantial financial gift will significantly ease the burden of tuition and books this year. It will also allow me more time to research my thesis, to be completed in my third year, which (tentatively) focuses on the disproportionality in disciplinary referrals, suspensions, and expulsions of children of color. I am dedicated to ensuring equitable educational environments for all children.

I am a full-time grad student and I also work full-time in San Francisco. Each week, I commute up to Sac for two days to attend my classes.
