

Still Life

110 degrees.

I think,
Nothing moves,

shifting in my chair.

Still

A magenta cluster
on the myrtle quivers slightly.

Silver blinks from a spider's thread, spinning
from one petal.

Beyond the wall,
the elm's topmost leaves
whisper to each other.

Theresa McCourt