

Nancie McLaughlin has a Master's in Education, Behavioral Science, Gender Equity at California State University, Sacramento. She received her undergraduate degrees in Education and Business Administration. She has served more than two decades as an entrepreneur and an award-winning arts educator in Northern California. Nancie is currently a professor of education at California State University, Sacramento in the College of Education, Theatre & Dance Department, and Continuing Education programs. Her research focuses on empowering women through professional and personal development. She is passionate and engaged to deliver empowering opportunities to all adult learners in transition to further her passion as an educator and to engage others to succeed in their personal and professional endeavors.