Please join us for this free one-day interactive symposium at dedicated to exploring innovative ways of designing safe and supportive transitional spaces (e.g., interim housing communities) for individuals experiencing homelessness in Sacramento County. The symposium will feature faculty and student research as well as professionals working to support our unhoused neighbors.

We hope you will commit to engaging with us on this topic for the full-day of presentations and collaborative discussion. Attendees will learn about a new set of tools, ideas (e.g., trauma-informed design), and proposals for local transitional housing communities as well as have the opportunity to create new partnerships in advancing solutions to this challenging issue.

This is a free event that is open to the public. Breakfast and lunch refreshments will be provided to those that RSVP. AIA Continuing Education Units will also be available in partnership with the AIA Central Valley.

The event is co-sponsored by Sacramento State's Department of Design (College of Arts & Letters) and the Center for Health Practice, Policy & Research (College of Health & Human Services)
