

Aishah Y. Patterson, Ph.D., CCC-SLP Associate Professor

Dr. Patterson earned her bachelor's degrees from Indiana University, Bloomington, in Linguistics and Speech and Hearing Science. She earned her master's and doctoral degrees in Speech and Hearing Science from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. Previously an Assistant Professor and Clinical Supervisor at New Mexico State University from 2009 – 2013, Dr. Patterson has provided undergraduate and graduate instruction in clinical methods and procedures, aphasia, adult neurogenics, and motor speech disorders. Dr. Patterson joined the faculty at California State University, Sacramento in 2017 and has taught in the areas of Voice and Fluency, Autism, Methods, and Medical Speech Pathology. As a licensed and certified Speech-Language Pathologist, she has clinical and supervisory experience across the lifespan. Dr. Patterson's teaching and research interests are related to the biological aspects of communication, including its challenges. Her research focuses on the physiological stress response in school-age children who stutter. Dr. Patterson also supports student success within the College of Health and Human Services (CHHS) as a Critical Success Faculty Fellow.
