Important Considerations Before Applying to the Sacramento State Psychology Graduate Program

- The Psychology Graduate Program is primarily a day program intended for full-time enrollment. Courses and experiential work are often held between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Some programs require internship participation, while others require research work outside of the classroom.

- The Psychology Graduate Program does not lead to licensure as a clinical psychologist, MFT or counselor. Individuals with these career goals should contact the Sacramento State College of Education or the Department of Social Work in the College of Health and Human Services.

- Applicants without a B.A. or B.S. in Psychology should not apply to the program if they do not have a solid foundation in Psychology.

- The application requires applicants to submit proof of having completed two Psychology based Statistics and methods courses. These courses must have included research methods, in which students have analyzed a dataset and written an A.P.A paper; and descriptive and complex inferential statistics such as factorial ANOVAs, mixed model ANOVAs, ANCOVAs, MANOVAS, planned and unplanned comparisons, factor analysis, and multiple regression. Applicants are asked to provide a course description and syllabus for each course when completing the online supplemental application.
