

FROM THE DIVISION OF INCLUSIVE EXCELLENCE

Countdown to 2023 AICP Spring Symposium

To All Members of the Campus Community:

As a campus community, we are on the journey to BECOMING an antiracism, inclusive, and anti-oppression campus, where every member of the Sac State community knows they belong and can thrive. To build on our continued progress and commitment to this effort, I am excited to invite you to join us on Tuesday, March 28, 2023, in the University Union Ballroom for the Antiracism and Inclusive Campus Symposium. As we move into Year 2, Becoming, of the Antiracism and Inclusive Campus Action Plan, our entire campus community is encouraged to come together for this in-person symposium to build collective awareness, establish new opportunities for belonging, and intentionally make recommendations to solve common diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging dilemmas. There is only 5 days left to register to attend; don't miss this engaging, interactive, accessible, and historic campus-wide event.

You can review the full agenda by clicking here. Sessions throughout the day will offer opportunities for expanding education, exposure, experience and engagement on equity-centered topics, including:

- Textbook affordability
- Intersections of race and disability
- Strategies for supporting affinity centers
- Sexual violence prevention
- Student researchers on "Finding Comunidad"
- Faculty on re-examining higher education
- Staff and administrators on expanding inclusive hiring practices
- Community organizations on their impact on the Sacramento region and beyond
