

FESTIVAL OF NEW AMERICAN MUSIC

Sac State Collaborators:

Timothy Stanley

Sac State Department: School of Music, College of Arts & Letters

Community Partner:

Cosumnes River College

FESTIVAL OF NEW AMERICAN MUSIC

The Department of Music at Sacramento State has been granted funding to collaborate with Cosumnes River College (CRC) for the Festival of New American Music (FeNAM). This project aims to provide enrichment activities for CRC students, offering masterclasses, artist forums, and lectures, thereby promoting student success in music and supporting recruitment and retention efforts. Over the past decade, the festival has established a strong connection with CRC, contributing to a vibrant musical culture in the Sacramento area.

This enduring partnership not only enhances the educational experience for CRC students but also serves as a feeder program for talented individuals entering the Sacramento State School of Music (SoM). The collaboration extends beyond FeNAM, encompassing a commitment to recruiting student talent and fostering the School of Music's presence in the Elk Grove community. This ongoing partnership has facilitated unique opportunities for CRC students to engage with renowned musicians, attend lectures, and experience performances, enriching their musical education and contributing to their growth as aspiring musicians. The proposed activities in FeNAM seek to build upon this decade-long collaboration, strengthening ties within the community and making a lasting impact on the musical education of students in the region.

ANCHOR UNIVERSITY

Sacramento State works to align its efforts and resources to create long-term meaningful partnerships between the University and the communities we serve.

SACRAMENTO STATE