Mission

The Center for African Peace and Conflict Resolution (CAPCR) was established in 1996 at California State University, Sacramento, to provide conflict resolution and reconciliation services for agencies, governments, institutions, businesses, civil society and community organizations and other groups through training, education, research, and intervention.

CAPCR develops curricular/materials and provides training on mediation, negotiation, arbitration, and other conflict resolution services for governmental and nongovernmental organizations, business and community groups, public and private agencies, educational institutions and allied professional associations in the United States and Africa.

Goals

- Develop and implement programs that educate and promote peace and conciliation among families, organizations, community groups, and governments, both in the US and Africa.
- Conduct research and evaluations on African conflict situations and serve as a clearinghouse/resource center.
- Establish institutional and community network of support in the US and Africa on conflict resolution and assist in creation of indigenous conflict resolution institutes in Africa.
- Assist in mediation/arbitration/resolution of conflicts among Africans, when possible and with consent of disputing parties.

Since CAPCR's founding in 1996, CAPCR has developed independently, and in conjunction with other agencies, numerous major initiatives on conflict resolution, alternative dispute resolution and peace education. Our partners include the U.S. State Department and Department of Education, the U.S. Institute of Peace, USAID, JAMS Foundation, World Bank, California Wellness Foundation, the Nigerian Institute of Advanced Legal Studies in Lagos, University of Ibadan, Nigeria, the Nigerian Human Rights Commission, the University of Ghana-Legon, the Ghana Bar Association, Judiciary and Ministry of Justice, the Ghana Association of Certified Mediators and Arbitrators, Ethiopia Dispute Resolution Association, Federation of Women Lawyers (FIDA)-Kenya and Ethiopia, National University of Rwanda-Butare, The Gambia Judiciary, Addis Ababa University, the University of Liberia in Monrovia, the University of Dakar in Senegal, the African Center for Constructive Resolution of Disputes (ACCORD), among others.

Peace Commerce: The Role of Peace in Economic and Business Development

Social peace and economic and business development are intertwined concepts and actualities. Conflict and war are not the bedrocks upon which economic and business development can be built. Mutatis mutandis we can say that the lack of economic and business development is at the inception of many situations of conflict that have escalated or may escalate to war. No justice, no peace, no social justice, no social peace, that is the motto that so well entails this reality.

The economic and business development this conference is concerned with is democratic economic development, development that is spread across all social strata, especially to those at the bottom that have been excluded from the prosperity that some are able to enjoy. For the most part, neo-colonialism maintained the exploitative and resource draining “development” of extractive economies, that have had a terrible effect on the peaceful coexistence of peoples in Africa and elsewhere in the world. Examples of this deleterious resource exploitation are the extraction of gold and diamonds in South Africa and Angola, oil and diamonds in Angola/Cabinda and Nigeria/Biafra, coltan and other rare minerals in the Democratic Republic of Congo, and the list of raw materials exported to developed countries, the list of the disappeared riches of Africa and of the many countries of the African Diaspora, it is too long to cite here.

Left behind in the place of those riches there remain monumental environmental disasters, profound corruption of institutions and officials, and squalor for large masses of people.

This is the situation that real democratic economic and business development ought to reverse. And democracy implies open, transparent governance and the respect of all ethnic, religious and cultural groups, and the inclusion of girls and women in the structures of economic, political and social power.

Additionally, today Africa(ns) face the daunting challenges of accelerated climate collapse. Never before endured droughts, storms, floods, cyclones, and extremes of cold and heat, have forced millions to migrate, again robbing the land of the best and most entrepreneurial people, such as industrial scale slavery did centuries ago.

The 28th Annual CAPCR Conference raises the curtain and scratches the surface of many of these issues relating especially, but not only, to Africa and the African diaspora. In this still new 21st century Africa(ns) will experience many challenges, both new and old. Despite it all, and with sustained efforts, we are hopeful about the prospects of Africa and Africans all over the world.

The conference concludes with the 28th Annual Africa Peace Awards, a fundraiser for the Africa Peace Fellows initiative, an initiative that aims to build the next generation of peace and development leaders in Africa.

And still Africa rises!
