Daniel Castellanos, Academic Advising Center

Daniel Castellanos is the Academic Advising Center's Transfer Center and ADT Coordinator. He's been in his current role for six months but has been part of the Academic Advising Center team for over five years. As the ADT Coordinator, Daniel ensures that students who earn an ADT at a California Community College have a smooth transition here to Sacramento State. Daniel has made a significant impact in ensuring students feel a sense of belonging to the University by enhancing their overall experience through advising campaigns that review students' remaining GE/GR requirements. He also connects students to campus resources, assists in hosting events, and is a mentor to many; Daniel exemplifies the vision, mission, and values of Student Affairs. In addition, he also works with Sac State's community and campus partners to inform others about the ADT program. Daniel demonstrates what it means to be a great leader and colleague by bringing innovative ideas and support to the Academic Advising Center team. Daniel truly is an outstanding staff member. He is a first-generation former transfer student and Sac State graduate who continues to excel as the Transfer Center and ADT Coordinator.
