

Area A1 Oral Communication

Students will be able to:

- Construct and deliver a variety of sustained, ordered, informative and persuasive oral messages demonstrating a rhetorical understanding of how situational elements invite and constrain verbal rhetorical responses.
  - A. Identify and employ appropriate organizational structures for sustained public presentations, and rhetorically justify those choices.
  - B. Identify and employ appropriate supporting material (including visual aids) reflecting rhetorical analysis of the context, audience, and speech content.
  - C. Engage in a basic critique and analysis of supporting material.
- Identify and apply strategies for dealing with communication apprehension.
